

Isaiah 2:1-5

A Vision of the Millennial Reign of the Messiah

Isaiah has a great deal of prophecy concerning the end of the age and the second coming of the Messiah. These early chapters, as we learned last week, are a preliminary overview of the entire prophecy of Isaiah. These first five verses of chapter two give a brief but profound glimpse into the future age and then quickly, in verse six, revert to the present apostasy of Judah and Jerusalem with that message running to the end of chapter five. In this study we will consider only the future of "the last days" (a prophetic term used only here in Isaiah).

I. The Cataclysmic End of the Age (Is 2:2)

Now it will come about that in the last days The mountain of the house of the LORD Will be established as the chief of the mountains, And will be raised above the hills; And all the nations will stream to it.

II. The Reunification of the Peoples of the Earth (Is 2:3)

And many peoples will come and say, "Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, To the house of the God of Jacob; That He may teach us concerning His ways And that we may walk in His paths." For the law will go forth from Zion And the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

III. The Reign of Peace (Is 2:4)

And He will judge between the nations, And will render decisions for many peoples; And they will hammer their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation will not lift up sword against nation, And never again will they learn war.

IV. The Light of the Lord (Is 2:5)

Come, house of Jacob, and let us walk in the light of the LORD
